TUBERCULOSIS GERM WAS DISCOVERED 32 YEARS AGO

THEN. Thirty-two years ago today was discovered the fatal germ of tuberculosis which had caused more deaths since the beginning of the human family than any other disease. Its discoverer, Dr. Robert Koch of Germany, who spent two years in patient laboratory research before he finally located the little destroyer, too small to be seen by the naked eye, by the researcher's method of staining the suspected germ with chemicals. The discovery changed the whole world's attitude toward tuberculosis. Since the days of the ancient Assyrians the destroying germ has ravaged humanity. Moses witnessed its fearful devastations among the Egyptians, and in all the successive generations at least every sixth human being was at some time affected by its presence in the blood. Less than half a century ago the disease was regarded as "fatal and hopeless." Oliver Wendell Holmes, who was a physician as well as an author, described the average medical practitioner's acceptance of its fatality in his tale of the "Professor at the Breakfast Table." Some people regarded it as a divine affliction upon the human race, and an indication of mankind's degeneration. Thirty years ago Europe was reporting over 1,000,000 deaths every year from tuberculosis, while the United States was reporting at the rate of 450 every day.

NOW. Today the civilized nations of the world are conducting a universal war against the tubercle bacilli. Millions of dollars are being spent to conquer this enemy of the human race. In the United States over $20,000,000 is being expended annually for this purpose. Science and common sense are working out of doors where the death rate in 20 years has fallen from a ratio of 245.4 to 158 (per 100,000 population). Expert medical researchers are at work searching for a specific cure, while the nations are conducting a vast educational campaign to prevent the spread of the disease. Physicians have long known that the bacilli lurk in everyone's system waiting for the vitality to sink to a low ebb when they can begin their fearful scourge. Consequently, the universal campaign to make everyone strong enough to resist the destroyers. The world has thrown open its windows to let in sunlight and fresh air, knowing that these are fatal to the bacilli. The old fear of "night air" has given way to the practice of living, sleeping and working out of doors where the bacilli cannot follow and live. Economically considered, it is a great fight to save to the United States alone over half a billion dollars which an authority has said is the annual loss of the nation through the loss of the afflicted individual's wages and value to production.

INSTRUCTIVE ARTICLES ABOUND IN ISSUE OF MID-PACIFIC MAGAZINE

The "Mid-Pacific Magazine" is out today with illustrated articles from all around the Pacific and from each of the Hawaiian Islands. There is a good and timely story of the ascent of Haleakala by Rowland P. Dodge, and a description of an ascent of Hualalai on the island of Hawaii—an excursion that should be better known. John F. G. Stokes tells something of how the Hawaiians make their nets, and how they use them for fishing. Motor boating in Hawaii is treated by Guy N. Rothwell, and there are several other Hawaiian articles.

In this number, Alexander Hume Ford tells of some of his experiences and observations on his trip around the Pacific. He gives a remarkable description of how Percy Hunter planned the Hotel Koscusko on the summit of Australia's highest peak, and then introduced skiing to the Australians as their great July sport. Mr. Ford also tells of his experiences along the trout streams of Koscusko the Percy Hunter had stocked, until they have become the finest trout streams in the whole world. This article is redolent of the things we might just as well do here; and now that Mr. Ford, the Mid-Pacific Magazine, and the Promotion Committee are all working together, doubtless some of these plans will be worked out in Hawaii.

From now on it will be worth while to keep an eye on the Mid-Pacific Magazine, as it promises to be filled with instructive articles from about the Pacific, telling of the things that each country does best.

GOOD CROWDS OUT TO SEE PICTURES AND HEAR COHEN

A rousing political meeting, attended by a large crowd, who enjoyed moving pictures and music as well as the speeches, was held last night by Joel C. Cohen, Republican candidate for mayor.

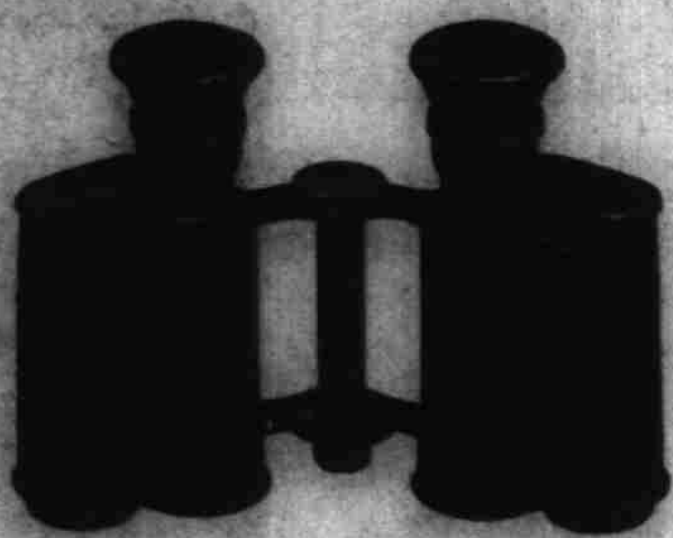

The keynote of Mr. Cohen's speech was for a business administration of the affairs of the city and county. He spoke strongly on this subject and was closely followed and heartily applauded by the audience.

Other candidates who spoke from the Cohen platform were James C. Quinn and Rev. J. W. Kekipi. Republicans running for supervisor, and E. K. Lillikani, a candidate for the senate. The latter acted also as an interpreter.

While robbing a house at Haverstraw, N. Y., burglars moved a bed on which a woman was sleeping in order to open a closet door. Former star boarders are suspected.

PERKINS WRITES TO ATKINSON ABOUT PROGRESSIVE PROSPECTS

Noted Bull Moose Thinks Solid South Is Being Broken Up Now

Democratic disaffection in the south, caused by the administration's tariff and foreign policies, continues to work out favorably to the progressive party, according to a letter received from George W. Perkins by National Committeeman A. L. C. Atkinson. The letter, which also furnishes some interesting side lights on New York state politics now attracting national attention, says:

New York, July 29, 1914.
A. L. C. Atkinson, Esq.,
Honolulu, Hawaii.

My dear Mr. Atkinson:

I wrote you at some length on the 22nd about the New York situation and dictated the letter just at the time that Senator Hinman had declared his intention of entering the primaries for the governorship of this state. Several days have elapsed and the developments here have been most interesting and significant. The trend of public opinion is clearly away from Mr. Whitman, who is regarded as Mr. Barnes' candidate, and toward Mr. Hinman. I enclose two or three editorials and articles that will tend to show the reason why. One thing is absolutely certain, namely, that it is being made perfectly clear that our people have not entered into any amalgamation, combination or fusion with the Barnes-riden Republican party of this state. Two or three days after Mr. Hinman's announcement, accompanied by Colonel Roosevelt's statement that he was for Hinman, some Progressives seemed to have the impression that the Progressive organization in New York state had entered into an arrangement to amalgamate with the Republican organization of this state. If you have heard any opinion of rumors to this effect, I call your attention to Mr. Barnes' statement in this morning's New York papers, of which I enclose a copy. Mr. Barnes has not only said Mr. Roosevelt for libel but has attempted to put Mr. Hinman in the Apianias Club, and is apparently about as boiling as any politician could be.

Mr. Hinman has made a formal statement to the effect that he will run for governor on whatever party ticket, if any, he carries in the primaries. Therefore, if he does not carry the Republican primaries but carries the Progressive primaries, he will run as our candidate for governor. Of course, if he does not carry the Republican primaries, a Barnes man doubtless will, in which event you can clearly see that Mr. Hinman would carry with him into the primaries and into the final vote a large number of Republicans, who are independent and Progressives but who have up to date not affiliated themselves as voters with the Progressive party. You will also see that, if in this further splitting up of the Republican party in this state the result is the continuance of Tammany in control and the selection of a Tammany governor, the people of this state will hold Mr. Barnes and his organization responsible and not Colonel Roosevelt and the Progressive organization of this state.

Whereas a month ago most of the papers here were speaking well of Mr. Whitman, and the opinion was quite general throughout the state that he would be nominated by the Republicans and elected, the various moves of Colonel Roosevelt during the last month have so seriously damaged Mr. Whitman's reputation that his strength has been greatly reduced, and the average person you meet and talk with seems to feel that he has very little chance of ultimately becoming governor.

As to the news from outside of New York state, it is generally satisfactory. Senator Beveridge has just finished a speaking tour in Illinois, where his audiences have been very large, enthusiastic and most attentive. Our speakers generally report the same condition wherever meetings are held.

From Maine, which, as you know, holds its elections about the middle of September, our people report very satisfactory meetings, and our organization is in splendid shape.

The disaffection which I have spoken of several times as existing in the southern states in the Democratic party, continues to grow, and the outlook for our cause down there is most encouraging.

I presume you have also heard of the sharp split in Nebraska, where the newspapers report Mr. Bryan as losing out in the contest he seems to have been waging there with Senator Hitchcock.

If there is any particular information about any particular section of the country that you would like to have, we will be glad to furnish it upon application.

Sincerely yours,

GEO. W. PERKINS.

P. S.—I presume you have noticed that in Texas, the Democratic voters have just turned down the Wilson candidate for governor, and selected at the primaries another man.

HAWAIIAN PINEAPPLE IS KING FOR A DAY AT HOME AND ABROAD

Pineapple Day, the Promotion Committee's latest project for advertising the Hawaiian islands to the tourist as an all-the-year-round playground and a great commercial and industrial center, was given birth today and jumped into instant popularity by proving an unusually lusty youngster. Hawaiians, tourists now mingling with Hawaiians, and friends of the islands both on land and sea, joined toward making the occasion one which for years to come will occupy a place in the front rank of Hawaii's many annual festivals.

Canned and fresh, or prepared in a thousand different ways to meet the pleasure of the epicurean, King Pineapple held sway on the menus of steamships, railway dining cars, hotels and clubs throughout Hawaii, Canada, Australia, Europe and on the high seas. It was not just "Pineapple" on the menus, but "Hawaiian Pineapple." Those who ate the fruit knew that it was not an inferior brand, but that which had ripened under the sunny skies of tropical Hawaii—the real Hawaiian variety which has become famous the world over. The Promotion Committee has well conducted its booster campaign in preparation for the coming of Pineapple Day, and the results have proved most satisfactory.

Honolulu business concerns have done their share toward making the occasion a successful one. A walk up Fort street will convince one of this. Beautiful and attractive window displays meet the eye on all sides. The grocers are exhibiting the fresh and canned fruit; the drygoods merchant is showing a stock of pineapple silk. Drug stores and soda fountains are proving meccas for the thirsty, and especially prepared pineapple, ice cream and sherbets are being supplied. The delicatessen stores are featuring delicious pastry and other good things to eat—all having a distinct flavor about them. "Pineapple" is a watchword in Honolulu today; the celebration is a red letter occasion for the territory.

For the housewife who would become initiated into the mysteries of the use of pineapple for culinary purposes the Promotion Committee is distributing thousands of pineapple recipe books explaining a hundred or more ways in which the fruit may be tastefully prepared. A large quantity of these books, as well as postal cards, have been placed in various business houses for free distribution.

On the mainland, Pineapple Day is being observed even more extensively than in Hawaii. Large wholesale and retail grocery concerns have notified the Promotion Committee that they are making special window displays of the fruit; hotels, clubs, steamships and railways are featuring pineapple on their menus. To President Woodrow Wilson and the mayors of the leading cities of the United States have been sent samples of canned pineapples. Letters innumerable have been received by the committee from mainland business houses and individuals vouching their support toward making the occasion a success.

The local branch of the Wells Fargo Company reports that during the past few weeks it has handled immense shipments of fresh fruit. Residents of Honolulu are taking advantage of the opportunity to send pineapples to their friends on the coast and elsewhere.

"The question has been brought up whether this is just the best time of the year to have 'Pineapple Day,'" said Secretary H. P. Wood this morning. "A feasible suggestion has been made that the date of the observance be set for some day in the year when fresh fruits are not in season on the mainland. However, Pineapple Day has come to stay, and next year it is going to be even a bigger and better celebration."

The Austrian government placed a ban on the publication of military news. Six papers were confiscated at Prague for printing news of military preparations.

FILIPINOS ARE CHARGED WITH SMUGGLING DOPE

Evidences of the existence in Honolulu of a small opium ring were brought to light this morning when, on a warrant sworn to by L. B. Reeves, an inspector in the customs service, Layitana Francisco, Jacinto Geronimo, Eusebio Euora and Roman Montenegro, all Filipinos, were apprehended by the federal authorities on a charge of having transported, concealed, bought and sold opium.

At an early hour this morning the quartet was arrested by the night customs inspector as the members were attempting to leave the Pacific Mail liner Korea. They were locked up at the police station and later turned over to the federal authorities. The defendants are said to be members of the Korea's Filipino orchestra, and it is understood that they have been engaged in a small opium smuggling enterprise.

A hearing of the case before United States Commissioner George S. Curry, set for 11 o'clock this morning, was continued until 10 o'clock Monday morning.

CONCERT AT KALIHI UNION CHURCH PROVES UNQUALIFIED SUCCESS

It's Getting Near That Time

when son will have to throw off his play-stained and frolic-torn garments and prepare to resume his school-work.

We mention this early for just one reason---we have the clothing in our store that son should wear when he proudly walks into the room of his new grade.

It's just the time to buy that new and nobby Suit (25% off during this month, you know), the new Cap or Hat, the bright tie, the mannish Shirt or comfortable Blouse, the strong, durable Stockings, the new Underwear, etc.

Shall we expect to see you soon?
